DETAILED ACTION

1. This action is in response to applicant's amendment received on 12/12/07.

Claim Objections

2. Claim 7 is objected to because of the following informalities: line 5, "a conveyor system chain" should be change to 'the conveyor system'; and line 7, "a pair of teeth.." should be change to 'the pair of teeth.'. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 7 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Purcell (4,445,411) in view of Roberson et al. (3,779,117).

Purcell discloses the invention substantially as claimed including a conveyor system chain (A and B) and a plurality of pair of teeth having a generally trapezoidal shape (P and H). Purcell doesn't show a plurality of pairs of saw blades. However, Roberson et al. teaches the use of a plurality of pairs of saw blades (2, 4, 6 and 8) for the purpose of sawing the log into slaps and cants of desired thickness. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the device of Purcell by providing the plurality of pairs of saw blades as taught by Roberson et al. in order to obtain a device that cuts the log into slaps and cants of desired thickness.

5. Claim 9, 11, 14 and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Purcell (4,445,411) in view of Roberson et al. (3,779,117) and Joa (2,842,169).

Purcell discloses the invention substantially as claimed including a conveyor system chain (A and B) and a plurality of pair of teeth having a generally trapezoidal shape (P and H). Purcell doesn't show a plurality of pairs of saw blades. However, Roberson et al. teaches the use of a plurality of pairs of saw blades (2, 4, 6 and 8) for the purpose of sawing the log into slaps and cants of desired thickness. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the device of Purcell by providing the plurality of pairs of saw blades as taught by Roberson et al. in order to obtain a device that cuts the log into slaps and cants of desired thickness.

The modified device of Purcell discloses the invention substantially as claimed except for a belt. However, Joa teaches the use of a belt 20 for the purpose of securely holding the workpiece during cutting. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the device of Purcell by providing the belt as taught by Joa in order to obtain a device that securely holds the workpiece during cutting. Also, Purcell is capable of cutting an endocarp of coconut.

6. Claim 10 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Purcell (4,445,411) in view of Roberson et al. (3,779,117) as applied to claim 7 above, and further in view of Joa (2,842,169).

The modified device of Purcell discloses the invention substantially as claimed except for a belt. However, Joa teaches the use of a belt 20 for the purpose of securely holding the workpiece during cutting. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the device of Purcell by providing the belt as taught by Joa in order to obtain a device that securely holds the workpiece during cutting.

7. Claims 8, 12 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Purcell (4,445,411) in view of Roberson et al. (3,779,117) and Joa (2,842,169) as applied to claim 15 above.

The modified device of Purcell discloses the invention substantially as claimed except for a separate conveyor for each pairs of saw blades. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the device of Purcell by providing a separate conveyor for each pairs of saw blades for the purpose of cutting more logs at the same time, since it has been held that mere duplication of essential working parts of a device involves only routine skill in the art. St. Regis Paper Co. v. Bemis Co., 193 USPQ 8.

Response to Arguments

8. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

9. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Hoskin, Mackall and Roberson are cited to show related device.
